POWELL'S BALSAM OF ANISEED, for Coughs, Colds, Shortness of Breath, Asthma, &c.—This invaluable medicine has the extraordinary property of immediately relieving Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, difficulty of Breathing, and Harkness in the Throat. It operates by dissolving the congealed Phlegm, consequently causing a free expectoration.

Those who are troubled with that unpleasant tickling in the throat, which deprives them of rest night after night, by the incessant cough which it provokes, will, by taking one dose, find immediate relief; and one bottle in most cases will effect a cure.

Price 25 cents per bottle.
For sale at the Perfumery, Fancy, and Patent Medicine Depot of JAMES CLEPHANE, mar 20- corner of Penn. av. and 12th street.

ICE! ICE! ICE!—The subscriber having succeeded, at a very great expense, in filling his large house with Potomac Ice, of a very superior quality, is now prepared to receive orders for the coming season. He would advise all private families, keepers of hotels, boarding-houses, confectionaries, &c., who wish a supply through the entire season, to make early application, and they will not be disappointed, as many were last summer, by one or two small dealers in that article, who attempted to furnish and failed in the hottest weather, when it was most wanted.

He has the largest house in the District, and will feel bound to furnish those who commence with him until next December if they require it.

Persons wishing ice before the season for delivering from the wagons, can get it by sending to the store, where it is kept constantly on hand.

THE TRUTH SOMETIMES NOT FOUND OUT UNTIL TOO LATE.

SUCH is often the case in regard to persons taking medicine. They are induced by plausible reasoning, false representation and doctrines, to employ medicines that, so far from being adapted to their disease or sickness, absolutely increase the symptoms, destroy the constitution, rack the whole system, and bring on a gradual decline, terminating in death; previous to the fatal termination, however, (but unfortunately too late,) the truth is found out that the pills, mixtures, &c. they have been taking were composed of the most powerful and dangerous ingredients, prepared too by persons knowing nothing of disease or the nature of the medicines they recommended, depending altogether upon the "general doctrine of such impostors," that their medicines will "kill or cure." Be advised, then, if you find it necessary to take some medicine for purifying the blood and cleansing the bowels, to take nothing but DR. LEIDY'S justly and deservedly celebrated SARSAPARILLA BLOOD PILLS, the only pills containing Sarsaparilla in their composition—the safest and best as well as the most effectual that can be taken.

Old and young, at all times, without regard to weather, may take them without fear of taking cold, and without restraint from occupation or usual course of living. Upwards of 1,000 certificates have been published, various times, of their efficacy. More than 100,000 boxes have been sold in Philadelphia in twelve months. These facts go to prove their value, or so many never would be sold in so short a time, in a place where they are manufactured; this, however, arises in part from the fact that the manufacturer of them (Dr. Leidy) is well known at home as a regular physician and apothecary, knowing the true nature of diseases and of the medicines he recommends, attested by the most celebrated physicians, among whom are Dr. Nathaniel Chapman, Dr. Wm. Gibson, Dr. W. E. Horner, Dr. Samuel Jackson, Dr. Robert Hare, Dr. P. S. Physic, Dr. T. C. James, Dr. W. P. Dewees, Dr. J. Redman Coxe, Rev. W. H. Delancy, Robert Adrian, LL.D., &c. &c.

Orders for Dr. Leidy's BLOOD PILLS are daily received from the North, South, East, and West, and the most flattering accounts, from every direction, of their unparalleled success. A single box (25 cents) may save as many dollars, if taken in time, instead of the dangerous medicines now forced on the public, and by taking which persons so often find it necessary at last to take Dr. Leidy's Blood Pills, to counteract their injurious consequences.

They are prepared only, and sold Wholesale and Retail, at Dr. Leidy's Health Emporium, No. 191, North Second street, below Vine street, Philadelphia. And by CHARLES STOTT, ap 25-3m Agent for the District.

COMMUNICATION.

A REVIEW OF LINN BOYD'S LETTER. No. 2.

On the 25th of January, 1825, a letter appeared in the Columbia Observer, charging Mr. Clay with having made improper overtures to General Jackson. This was published in Philadelphia, and received at Washington on the 31st, and declared false by Mr. Clay on the same day. Mr. Kremer avowed himself the author on the 2d of February. On the same day, Mr. Clay challenges an investigation into his conduct, and Mr. K. accepts the challenge, and promises to sustain his accusation.

The committee appointed by the House itself, with the common consent of both parties, called upon Mr. Kremer to execute his pledge, publicly given in his seat as a member of the House of Representatives, and also previously given in the public prints. In his card, Mr. Kremer has been made to say, that he held himself ready "to prove to the satisfaction of unprejudiced minds enough to satisfy them of the accuracy of the statements which are contained in the letter addressed to the Columbia Observer."

Now, after all of this parade of proof, do you not know that Mr. Kremer refused to appear before the committee and sustain his allegations? You cannot have forgotten Mr. Clay's address on this occasion, and the "fearless promptitude and open defiance" with which he met these reckless and unfounded accusations. Yet this dignified, able, and conclusive address, as it was generally acknowledged to be, has had no efficacy in shielding him from this opprobrious charge.

Mr. Clay demands an investigation—demands the production of proof—before the committee. Was there ever a more ample and explicit avowal of a determination to confront an accuser? Can any one contend or ask for more? Would Mr. Clay have acted thus, had he been conscious of having violated his duty? If he knew that the accusation were maintainable, would he not have sought concealment when it was so easily practised? Undoubtedly he would. But he had higher objects in view. He wished the impartial historian, in recording the annals of those times, to state that his integrity stood pure and unsullied. He knew full well, that if this elevated virtue once received a stain, no service, however brilliant, could wipe it off. Integrity, like the emerald, will die rather than receive a spot; or, to consider her in the character of a deity, she expects a constant and unsuspected sacrifice, and shuts her temple forever against the votaries who forsake it for a moment. He felt a consciousness of his innocence, and a just pride of his character, which placed him far above the apprehension of events. He was anxious to meet the accusation. He knew that in this matter he had deported himself conformably to his previously declared opinions, and the firm and inflexible duty of a patriot. He knew, also, that he could demonstrate before the committee his innocence as to all matters alleged against him. And, acrimonious as are the terms in which this accusation has been made, base and opprobrious as are the epithets wherewith it has been thought proper to assail his name and character, it must have been a matter of great felicitation to Mr. Clay that Mr. Kremer had put forth this charge into a definite form, so susceptible of refutation, and for having thereby afforded him an opportunity of denying it in the most unequivocal terms, and asserting his innocence in the face of the House of Representatives of his country, and of the world!

At this stage of the controversy, let us refer to the editorial remarks of the Enquirer, in relation to the investigation of Mr. Clay's conduct in the House of Representatives. I suppose that the evidence of Mr. Ritchie will be received by you as conclusive proof, as regards Mr. Clay's innocence.

From the Richmond Enquirer of February 10, 1825.

"As to the other questions upon which we publish this day such copious debates, we do not hesitate to say that Mr. Clay has met the charge as a man ought to meet it. His fearless promptitude and open defiance are the surest indications of his innocence. This, combined with avowals from almost all quarters of the House, and the uniform information in the last letters from that city, can leave no doubt of the result of the investigation, nor does Mr. Kremer shrink, but we suspect he will seek to escape by a sort of special pleading, such as Mr. McDuffie has thrown into his amendment. Be it as it may, the inquiry is begun, and it ought to be prosecuted with energy; the whole matter should be probed to the bottom; no loop hole ought to be left to hang a single doubt on, for in times like these the people will expect their Representatives not only to be chaste, but free from all suspicion. Mr. Clay is innocent of this charge. We are fully prepared to see the committee acquit him of this imputation of bartering his vote for an office."

One or two questions, suggested by the foregoing extract from his paper, we desire to ask of Mr. Ritchie. What has occurred since February, 1825, to change the belief then expressed by him of Mr. Clay's innocence? Is it that Kremer and his associates, ditto, under a cloud raised by McDuffie, fly from the investigation, as the Enquirer predicted, and that Mr. Clay stood his ground "as a man ought to" stand it? Or is it that on every subsequent opportunity, Mr. Clay has renewed the invitation to his enemies to come forward with their charges? That he continued to meet these charges, in his card of 31st January, 1825; in his address to his constituents, of 26th March, 1825; in his speech on the 30th August, 1826, at Lewisburg; on the 10th October, 1826, in a denial, authorized by himself, of these charges, as stated in Duff Green's circular; in a denial, also authorized by himself, and dated Washington,

18th April, 1827, of the statements contained in the Fayetteville letter; in a denial uttered by himself, on the first appearance of Gen. Jackson's letter of 6th June, 1827; in his publication dated Lexington, 29th June, 1827; and in his speech near the same place, pronounced on the 12th July, 1827? Can all these—"the surest indications of his innocence," (to borrow the language of the Enquirer,) have changed into incredulity Mr. Ritchie's belief, so emphatically expressed in February, 1825, of Mr. Clay's innocence? Every thing, indeed, in Mr. Clay's after conduct, is calculated to confirm Mr. Ritchie in his faith. Has anything occurred, then, in Gen. Jackson's developments to make Mr. Clay's innocence less probable than it was in the month of February, 1825, when Mr. Ritchie penned his honest paragraph? Is the certainty of the "indications" lessened because General Jackson has uttered charges which he has failed to prove? Because the prosecutor is put down by his own witness? Because a declaration from this witness, acquitting Mr. Clay of the charges repeated in the Beverly letter, might have been obtained by this prosecutor two years and half before the date of that letter, and had for almost one year been in the possession of his most worthy friend and correspondent, Duff Green, the editor of the United States Telegraph? Because this prosecutor, in attempting to justify his slanders against Mr. Clay, has not only failed ridiculously, but has shown that he himself has added the guilt of meditated injury to that of inflicted calumny? Or, because this prosecutor has thus exceeded, by a far and deep step, that point of assertion at which Mr. Ritchie said "he would stand dishonored and disgraced in the opinion of all?"

Knowing perfectly well that Mr. Ritchie can give no reasons for an alteration in his belief (a belief expressed so earnestly as to amount to an asserted knowledge of the fact) of Mr. Clay's innocence, which will be less absurd than those which we have mentioned, what apology, we ask, can he offer to justice and to common sense for his insidious and hypocritical movements on the subject of Gen. Jackson's slanders?
